MISSIONARY

Meeting of the Women's Organizations.

District Gathering of the Delegates at Louisa Was a Very Interesting Affair.

The joint meeting of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Ashland Conference of the M. E. church, South, began in this city on Saturday afternoon, October 15, and closed the following Sunday night after a most successful and highly interesting session. The place of meeting was the Southern Methodist church, and the attendance throughout was large. The business session was opened at 2 p. m. Saturday, the Secretary of the Home Missionary Society, Mrs. Bolivar Wesley, of Ashland, presiding. After appropriate religious exercises Mrs. H. C. Sullivan delivered the address of welcome which was responded to by Mrs. W. S. Harkins, of Prestonsburg. The presence of Miss Daisy Davies, of Atlanta, Ga., the able General Secretary of the Women's Societies, was hailed with delight, and throughout the entire meeting she had the right of way. She addressed the afternoon meeting on topics of vital interest to the two societies and to all who are interested in missionary work. Interest increased as the sessions grew, and on Saturday night the church was filled with people. Miss Davies was again the speaker, eloquent, logical and most attractive. On this occasion her theme was the Home Field, and no one could have handled it in a better way. New ideas were advanced, old ones were presented in newer and more attractive light, and through the speaker's wonderfully pleasing way of handling the somewhat worn topic her hearers were able to view it in clearer and better guise.

On Sunday the regular services of the church were suspended and the missionary people were much in attractive evidence. In the morning Miss Davies presented the claims of Foreign Missions, and as on every other occasion when she was heard, all who heard her were delighted. Her address was really a sermon on Missions, but one so clothed and illustrated that it reached the minds and hearts of all who had the good fortune to hear it.

The afternoon belonged to the Juvenile Society, and they and their friends had a most delightful and instructive time. They entertained with an appropriate program, and they did well. Their good friend, Miss Davies, was present and greatly delighted them and their many friends. The manners and customs of far off China and Korea were exemplified in a way never before seen in Louisa. Miss Davies wore a gorgeous costume, being dressed as the wife of a Chinese lady of rank. The dress was presented to Miss Davies by the ladies of the Kentucky Conference a few years ago, and is a marvel of color and rich in fabric and design. Novel and beautiful features of the afternoon meeting was the appearance of a Korean bride and groom and a Chinese baby. The costumes worn were true in every detail, and the young personators were too "cute" for anything. Miss Elizabeth Conley represented the bride and Homer Yates the groom, while little Miss Emily Joan Herr was the Chinese baby.

At night Miss Davies appeared before a very large audience and spoke especially to the young people. She spoke of the importance of young people making the most of their opportunities—opportunities such as the young people of other countries never had, and such as the young men and women of this country never had before. The young men and women who were so fortunate as to hear this accomplished speaker should treasure the noble thoughts and sentiments expressed on this occasion. A Miss Daisy Davies is not heard by them every day nor every year. It is the voiced opinion all who met and heard her that she is unequalled in her sphere and mission. Of striking and pleasing person, fine address, genial manner and charm of conversation, Miss Davies is a most attractive and accomplished woman.

Special music appropriate to the occasion was rendered by the choir of the M. E. church, South.

The delegates in attendance and the churches they represented are as follows:

Mrs. A. L. Watson, Ashland, first church.

Mrs. Bert Geiger, Mrs. T. C. Songer, Mrs. B. Wesley, Ashland Centenary.

Mrs. Davis Meek, Mrs. Geo. B. Clay and Miss Mary Moore, Catlettsburg.

Mrs. S. C. Shivel, Mrs. John Ault, Miss Hazel Blankenship, Grayson.

Mrs. W. S. Harkins and Mrs. H. H. Fitzpatrick, Prestonsburg.

Made the Response.

The information is somewhat belated, but it is proper to say that Mr. M. S. Burns, of this city, made the response to the address of welcome at the late State Sunday School Convention at Winchester, Ky. The programmed speaker was not present, and until called upon Mr. Burns had no word or hint that he was expected to make any speech whatever. Of course he was equal to the emergency and made a fitting reply to the welcome extended to the delegates.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH

Effort to Cross Atlantic in Balloon Ends in Failure.

Walter Wellman, with a crew of five men, started from Atlantic City, N. J., on Saturday last, in an airship suspended from a balloon, on a voyage across the Atlantic. Starting from the beach a few minutes after 8 o'clock the big air-craft was soon out of sight of the cheering crowd that saw the big balloon go into the air. Numerous messages were received by wireless telegraphy until Monday night, when all communication was lost.

The following telegram tells the story of disaster and defeat:

New York, Oct. 18.—The attempt of the Wellman airship America to cross the Atlantic ocean came to a thrilling and disastrous close today when the British mail steamer Trent picked up Wellman and his crew from the wreck of the airship, 375 miles off the North Carolina coast.

The news of the rescue came in two wireless messages from Capt. Down, of the Trent, one reporting to the company's agents here and another informing the New York Times of the result of the expedition in which it had taken a leading part. Both wireless messages practically told the same story.

Capt. Down reported that at 5 o'clock this morning he first sighted the airship in distress. Signals of distress and calls for help were given. For three hours the Trent maneuvered in the heavy seaway to get alongside of Wellman and his wrecked companions.

The entire party were finally taken aboard, and the cat also, which was taken along as the mascot, shared in the rescue. Capt. Down reports all the members of the crew well. The America was abandoned where the rescue occurred, in latitude 35.3, longitude 68.18.

The wonderment and awe which was inspired Saturday as the dirigible first disappeared into the fog banks hanging over the ocean, had gradually turned to anxiety and serious apprehension as to the ultimate result of the experiment. The range of wireless had swept the entire North Atlantic, bringing no word from the airship for two days. The last word came at 12.45 o'clock p. m. Sunday off Nantucket. It was 44 hours after this that the rescue was accomplished by the steamer Trent.

The America has undoubtedly broken all previous records both as to time in air and distance covered. The previous time record, that of Count Zeppelin, was thirty-seven hours. The America's time up to 8 o'clock this morning would be three full days, or seventy-two hours. The previous distance record was that of Count Zeppelin, 870 miles.

The airship, relieved of the weight of the lifeboat, shot up high into the air and was rapidly blown away. The transfer of the Wellman party from the lifeboat to the Trent was effected with much difficulty.

Talk to the Point.

The Times is independent in politics, but it is for Mr. Fields for Congress, not simply because he happens to hail from Carter, because he is a Democrat or because he has had former experience, but because he is equally as honest, intelligent and has just as much right to aspire to the honorable position of representing the people of the district in which his interests mostly lie, as any other man in it.

The talk about experience is all bosh, and you never heard it mentioned at the time of Mr. Bennett's first race, and as to Mr. Fields being "a little off center" we think, after reading the Greenup editor's send-off this week, the Gazette had better be finding its own bearings a "leettle."

With Masonic Rites.

The corner stone of the Federal building in Catlettsburg was laid on last Saturday afternoon. The crowd present was very large, and the procession of Masons, Odd Fellows, Maccabees and county and city officials was very large. The stone was laid in position by Edward Pollock, of Greenup, representing Grand Master Cowles, of the Masonic Grand Lodge. To quote from a Boyd county paper "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was sung with great patriotism, John F. Hager, of Ashland, made a most enthusiastic address, and the occasion marks a day of great enthusiasm in the history of Boyd county.

Bitten by a Dog.

Eugene Davis, a passenger brakeman, on this division of the C. & O., was severely bitten by a dog last Friday morning. When No. 37 stopped at Middle Creek Davis got off to help passengers get off and on. He became engaged in a friendly scuffle with an acquaintance, and while thus engaged a dog took part in the frolic by biting Davis severely on the left thigh. When the train arrived in Ashland Mr. Davis had the wound cauterized. He still limps on account of the bite.

NEW COAL MINES.

Lawrence County Tract of 2000 Acres to be Developed.

A tract of 2000 acres of coal lands on Griffith's creek in this county has been sold to a Louisville company and a representative was here closing up the deal this week. This is a body of land taken up by Dave Vaughan. It extends to the river near Old Peach Orchard. The vein is said to be about four feet in thickness and the quality of the coal is excellent.

The purchasers say they will proceed at once to operate the property on a large scale, making the first openings along the river and railroad. This will be welcome news to the people in the locality of the property.

Lexington and Eastern Extension.

One of the most important moves that has been made in years was made last week in Louisville when contracts were let for an eighty mile extension of the Lexington and Eastern railroad from Jackson into the heart of the rich coal and timber fields of Eastern Kentucky.

The completion of this extension, bringing that hitherto undeveloped section of the State into direct communication with Lexington means much commercially and industrially to the bluegrass metropolis.

Everett Caldwell is now buyer for the Louisa Coal Co.

Louisville Times Publishes Extended Account of the Good Work of Our Own W. J. Vaughan.

Six years ago at a pastoral institute held at the First Presbyterian church in Louisville, a rugged man of the mountains stood before a cultured audience to tell of a life spent in Gospel work in the mountain and of his belief in the ultimate redemption of the mountain people, morally, spiritually and economically.

His address followed that of some of the most learned men in the pulpit in the South. Little was expected of him. He was rugged, raw-boned and unkempt. He had been working in coal pits to lay in a winter supply of coal for himself and a sick neighbor. In the lines of his face were the marks of a recent illness. He was plainly ill at ease. In the faces of some of his audience there was a touch of sympathy for him. Others only looked bored, but not for long.

The young man began to speak. He believed firmly in his subject. A light of latent fire began to burn in his eyes as he outlined the little hopes of fears and tragedies and prejudices of the mountain people; of the difficulties of men who preach the Gospel among them and sometimes found it necessary to take a sheriff with him to maintain order while a band kept up interest in a Sunday-school convention. But the keynote of his address was his burning belief in a greater destiny for the mountain people. They were his own people, and no man knew them better than he. In them he saw infinite possibilities and his remarks were a defense of them and a plea that they be given a fair chance. His voice grew eloquent as he told their simple story and there was a great burst of applause when he closed his remarks with a fervid outburst of oratory that seemed to come from the depths of his heart.

Lion of the Hour.

From that moment until the convention closed he was the lion of the hour. Persons in the city who had entertained him from a sense of duty before and had paid little attention to him, now took pride in extending their hospitality and could not do too much for him.

That man was W. J. Vaughan, a State Sunday School field worker in the mountain district. Then, as now, he was the spokesman of the mountain people. His face was one of the most familiar at the State Sunday School convention in session at Catlettsburg this week. It has changed some since that day when he addressed the pastoral institute six years ago. The mountain orator has aged some. The lines in his face are finer. He looks more the man of the world. He is wholly at his ease, but in his eyes is the same kindly light and in his heart the same burning belief in the destiny of the mountain people. Day by day he is seeing his belief verified and his hopes on their way to fruition.

Born in Log Cabin.

William Vaughan was born in a log cabin in the West Virginia knobs forty years ago. His early life was spent on his father's farm in the hills. Until he was eighteen years of age, he received no schooling whatever—did not even know the letters of the alphabet. Then a young man in search for better health, went to spend his summer in the mountains. From the start he took an interest in the mountain boy and finally induced him to take an interest in acquiring an education. His protege learned rapidly and in a few summers was himself qualified to become a teacher of the mountain people. Then he was offered a position in the schools of Lawrence county, Ky., a few miles distant across the Kentucky line. He accepted, and from that time Kentucky has been his home.

The mountain boy's mother was a devout member of the Baptist church and it was from her that he inherited his religious temperament. From the time of his arrival in Lawrence county, he took an active part in Sunday School work. It was not long until he was elected a county officer. He made such a record there that his work attracted State Sunday School officers and he was offered a position as a field worker in the mountain district. At first he declined to take the position but a year or two later was induced to enter the work.

That was fifteen years ago. He has been in the mountain field ever since. In that time, there is not a village or hamlet in the mountain districts that hasn't seen and heard him many times. Thousands and thousands of miles he has covered on horseback. Sometimes the journey will take him 200 miles.

The mountain preacher is welcome any place he stops and never is he asked to pay. The mountain people are the embodiment of generosity. One preacher, it is said, went for three years through the knobs and never expended but fifty cents. That was for horseshoeing. While there are now twice as many Sunday Schools in the mountains as when W. J. Vaughan began his work, there are many obstacles to be overcome. Strange to say, the most difficult of these are presented by persons who are already members of churches.

FOR GRAND LARCENY.

Peter Blankenship Arrested on Charge of Theft at Auxier.

About three weeks ago the Pendergast Lumber Company received a shipment of goods at Auxier, Floyd county, a point on the C. and O. nearly opposite the mouth of Johns creek. In this was a lot of men's shoes, several dozens in number. Soon after the goods were received two or three dozens were missing. They were shoes of fine quality, in tan and black, and in assorted sizes. There was no evident trace of the thief, and the sufferers from the robbery were at a loss as to how to capture the guilty party and recover the goods. Constable Dan Price, of Johnson county, who had proven his sagacity in matters of this sort on more than one occasion, took hold and set to work to effect a capture. Dan's first move was to learn who had been employed about the scene of the robbery. This having been done the next step was to find out who, if any, were missing. This was easy. Among the missing was a man who was not altogether above suspicion and beyond reproach. With this man were one or two kinsmen, and these were first sought. Price went to Catlettsburg a few days ago, having learned that the boys he wanted were there. Reaching that place he procured warrants for the arrest of Sol and Jack Crabtree, of near Louisa. With these in custody he arrived in Louisa Monday night via the N. and W. About 5 o'clock Tuesday morning he routed Judge O'Brien out of bed and procured a warrant for the arrest of Pete Blankenship and a warrant permitting the search of Pete's house, which is not far from the C. and O. freight depot. Marshal Vinson and Constable Price went in search of Blankenship and found him, with some others, not far from the tool house, getting ready to go to work. The Marshal arrested him, showed him the warrant and Price handcuffed him. Pete had on a pair of the shoes, and in his house were found several other pairs. Blankenship and Sol Crabtree were taken on the 7:25 a. m. train to Prestonsburg to await an examination, while Jack Crabtree was released. When arrested Sol Crabtree "gave away" the whole affair, telling how and when the deed was committed. Nothing of this nature had ever been charged to him, and it is thought that he will be released.

Mrs. J. M. Kennedy has been quite sick several days.

A Gifted Woman.

One of the Ashland delegates to the Woman's Missionary Convention recently held in this city was Mrs. A. L. Watson. It was intended that she should deliver an address upon "Mission Study" during the meeting, but she yielded her time to Miss Davies. The Independent thus speaks of Mrs. Watson:

Miss Watson is a native of Fayette county, Miss., and has been a resident of Ashland since June, 1909. Her maiden name was Pearl I. Huston, and at the age of fifteen she graduated at the Oxford High School, and at twenty she graduated at the State University of Mississippi in the B. A. degree. She taught two years in the graded schools in her home town, and shortly after this was married to Attorney A. L. Watson, of this city, where she has since made her home.

Death of Smith Pugh.

Mr. Smith Pugh, who was sick so long at the residence of his brother-in-law, the Rev. Roscoe Murry, of Lock avenue, died on the morning of Friday, October 14. On Saturday morning a short service was held at the house, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hardin, of the Baptist church, after which the body, escorted by the members of the Junior Order American Mechanics, was taken to the C. and O. depot and was taken to Covington, Ky., the home of the deceased. The Order in that city had sent an undertaker and a handsome casket in which the body was encased. The funeral was conducted from the First Baptist church and interment was made in Covington on the following Monday. Mr. Pugh was single and about 28 years of age.

Crushed by Slate.

Inez, Ky., Oct. 18.—News has reached here of the killing of Isaac Bannister, formerly of Inez, but who for the past few years has been working in the West Virginia coal fields. Bannister, who leaves a wife and five children, had just moved his family to Van Lear, Johnson county, and had not been in the mines at that point more than an hour when a piece of slate weighing over 1,000 pounds fell on him, crushing him into a pulp.

Upon the reception of the above the News phoned to Inez for particulars. The latest information received here is that Mr. Bannister is not dead but has been unconscious since receiving his injury.

DESPERATE BATTLE

At Huntington Results in Two Dead and Six Wounded.

On Friday morning last Special C. and O. Agent George Lenz arrested at a point in the road near Guyandotte a negro hobo charged with breaking into a box car. Lenz took his prisoner to a telephone station to call a patrol wagon. He was in the act of using the phone, when the negro shot him, the ball entering the back and passing through the lungs. The negro ran, with Lenz after him. Lenz ran but a short distance when he fell. The negro ran back and fired another shot into his victim's body. The negro then ran and tried to escape. The firing had attracted the attention of other C. and O. employees in the yards and arming themselves they gave chase. In a few minutes hundreds of armed men were in pursuit, firing and being fired upon by the fugitive. Before receiving his death wound, which was given by the Huntington Chief of Police, the negro had killed one man, Geo. Bias, a C. and O. brakeman, and had seriously wounded six others. The body of the outlaw was dragged through the streets for several squares before the police took it from the crowd and carried it to the morgue. It was a day of most intense excitement in Huntington, and all sorts of rumors only served to intensify the feeling. There is no clue to the identity of the negro.

Resolutions of Respect.

Little Willie, twin daughter of Harry and Nora Lakin, has passed away. She was born June 1, 1902, died Oct. 10, 1910. Her sickness was of short duration. She took sick Sunday morning and died Monday night. She bore her suffering without a murmur until she was called by Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Little Willie was a bright child, loved by all who knew her, especially by her school mates and Sunday school in which she belonged.

Dearest Willie thou hast left us. Here thy loss we deeply feel. But 'tis God that hath bereft us. He can all sorrow heal.

Resolved, first, in the death of this dear child the parents and Sunday school has lost a bright jewel.

Second, That we extend to the parents and only child, little Amelia, who is a twin sister of Willie, our heartfelt sympathy in their sad bereavement and while we can do nothing to fill the void may we seek comfort from Him who doeth all things well.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Sunday school and be published in Big Sandy News.

BRINGING BACK EXILES.

A Railroad's Plan to Induce Return to the Appalachian South of Men to Manner Born.

Johnson City, Tenn., August 16.—The building of the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio Railway has become a great factor in the development of the great wealth of the Appalachian country in Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina. No other territory in the world surpasses the Southern Appalachian region in requisites for human industry and happiness. None other of equal extent presents greater or more varied opportunities for the profitable employment of capital, brains and energy, and there is none where the human machine can maintain longer and more efficient service.

During the many years in which the wealth of this portion of the Appalachian region remained locked up for lack of railroads hundreds of thousands of its young men moved to Western States. At home the soil was fertile, the mineral wealth was great and timber was abundant, but without railroads there could be no commerce, no exchange of products. Money, therefore, was but little known in the Appalachian sections of the States mentioned. Now all this is changed. New railroads, like the Clinchfield, have placed the coal measures and orebeds, farms, forests, fruit and grazing lands as close to markets and distributing centers as adjoining countries were, one to the other, in former times. The former isolation of the region has, in these late days, made it truly the land of opportunity for its own and many thousands of other people. The next large migration to homeseekers in the United States will be into Appalachian region.

The industrial department of the Clinchfield is gathering lists of those who have gone from its territory into other States, and giving them information about the improved conditions they will find in their "old home" country and the opportunities it now offers them. In the prosecution of this undertaking it has the enthusiastic co-operation of the people on its line, and even on other lines of railroad. A large number of those who come "back home" have relatives who will furnish them lands right on the Clinchfield for fruit and sheep-raising. Products of these industries can now be delivered to good markets in as many hours as it required days in the old times. The markets, too, because of the immense factory, mining and lumbering population now in these States, are able to absorb all that can be produced of good grade.

The managers of the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio Railway intend that the road shall not only be a "national asset," but a national influence towards progressive transportation methods. It places the prosperity of its home people in foremost consideration, and in all its dealings with them the principle of mutual interests and co-operation is distinctly stressed. In all its departments full and complete fairness toward the public is the rule. Second, only exact truth is found in plains it puts forth concerning openings for settlers and enterprises in the Appalachian country it serves. It does not say that property can be bought along its line for a certain price unless the seller will guarantee to deliver it for the exact amount named.

OBITUARY.

Buchanan, Ky., Oct. 11th, 1910. Sallie Sloan departed this life September 1st, 1910, at the age of 81 years. She was the daughter of Zachariah Bryan, whose home was the home of the Methodist preacher for perhaps fifty years. Sallie was married to Alderson Sloan, more than forty years ago. Unto them was born two children, a son and a daughter. While they were young the father was called to the great beyond. Alderson, the son, grew up a faithful and obedient young man, and Mary was a most amiable girl.

Just in the bloom of youth Alderson was stricken down with a fatal disease. He had lived a moral respectable life, but when he began to properly look out over the great eternity, there hung thick shadows over his pathway. One day he sank back and died to all appearance. When he came to himself he called for his mother and threw his arms about her and said, "Mother, I always loved you, but I love you now better than ever before, I love everybody. He said, "God has taken all my skepticism away and I am ready for the kingdom." In a few days he bid his friends around farewell.

Sallie Sloan joined the M. E. church when about fourteen, and lived a moral respectable life. She was a good neighbor and loved by those who knew her. Before she finally passed over she was permitted with spiritual eyes to see her parents and sisters, that had gone on before. She called each of them by name, and seemed to be in conversation with them.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress,
WM. J. FIELDS,
of Carter County.

Wherever he is well known Hon. W. J. Fields is the most popular man who has made a race for Congress in this district for many years. It is regretted that he has been prevented by illness from making a close canvass of the district and getting acquainted with each and every voter. On the word of those who know him best we can conscientiously advise you to vote for him on November 8th.

An exchange says:
The temptations of Washington City will never cause the downfall of Hon. W. J. Fields, if elected to Congress. There are at least two Kentucky Congressmen that we might mention who are too weak to resist and as a result are in a disabled condition most of the time they are in Washington, to the disgrace of themselves and their constituents.

Will Go to Williamson.

Dr. J. C. Bussey, of this city, and his nephew, Dr. Jo. Bussey, of Busseyville, will shortly go to Williamson, W. Va., for the practice of their profession. Dr. J. C. Bussey will spend only a part of his time in Williamson and will maintain an office here as usual.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that John M. Moore will make application to the Governor of Kentucky for pardon from the penalty of imprisonment for ten days for carrying concealed a deadly weapon, assessed against him in Squire J. M. Berry's court in 1908. oct21:2.

A MOUNTAINEER.

place for Sunday Schools. Such institutions are not mentioned in the Bible. Will the mountain worker please show them that they are scriptural? If he will they will accept them. Otherwise they are eternally against them. This is the argument he must often meet. Some of the older followers in these primitive beliefs, it is said, warn their children to beware of four things. They are: "Pistols, whiskey, Mormons and Sunday Schools."

The preachers of these simple faiths still preach the stern gospel of an avenging God. Hell is much dwelt upon. Heaven rarely ever. An educated ministry is regarded as a sin. Preparation for a sermon is a crime. God will put words in the mouths of his children when they arise to speak for him. The revised version of the Bible is a thing accursed. They are the real defenders of the faith. The old St. James version is the only true word. These are only a few of the obstacles that W. J. Vaughan has had to meet.

Were it not for the younger generation, the work in some places might seem hopeless, but they in their eagerness for advancement more than compensate for the elders. It is in the young men and women of the mountains that their spokesman bases his hopes for the future. "They are stalwart physically," he says, "full of energy, and eager to learn. They are of almost pure Anglo-Saxon blood and right to be called the real 'Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution.'" It can be said that there are in fact only about forty families in the mountains. Since the time that their forefathers fought to throw off the yoke of King George, there has probably been not more than one per cent. accretion of foreign blood.

Men of Power Developed.

There isn't any place in the United States developed men of power like the mountain districts of Kentucky. Mr. Vaughan points out, and in the future he declares the State is going to look to them for the biggest achievement of its sons and daughters. They are rapidly becoming educated and Mr. Vaughan asserts that there is not a college in the State that has not in the past few years graduated mountain boys and girls who stood at the head of their classes. In his own county alone, he declares, he can name no less than fifteen who have been graduated from institutions of higher learning with honors. Today, he declares, the stigma for Kentucky's illiteracy does not rest upon the mountain districts, but upon the tobacco growing districts. The mountain counties are also making rapid strides in temperance and morality. Today, Mr. Vaughan avers, there are but two counties in the mountain districts where there are saloons. They are Boyd and Bell counties. The illicit still is gradually giving way and rapid strides are being made upward.

Natural-born fighters, the mountain people still cling to their firearms and sometimes use them, but not as much as formerly and conditions are beginning to change from the time when it was said that some counties paid more taxes on fire arms than on farm implements.

Mr. Vaughan points to his own county as an example of what has been accomplished. "Fifteen years ago," he says, "Lawrence county had a most unsavory reputation for drunkenness and criminality. Today if a drop of whiskey sold in the county I do not know it. I know that I have a twelve-year-old boy who has never seen a drunken man. The people dress well, are well educated and are moving forward with gigantic strides. Much of this has been accomplished by the working power of God's word. I know that I am a preacher, but forgetting that, we all know that there is no greater force in human advancement than the Bible. There is no more potent social force than the plain injunction of the ten commandments, 'Thou shalt not kill.'"

Growing Commercially.

And now, Mr. Vaughan points out, the commercial growth of the mountain districts is beginning to move forward with Brobdinagian strides. In these mountains are the greatest undeveloped coal fields in the world. Capitalists are just beginning to develop them. Railroad extensions are being made from Ashland to the head of the Big Sandy, from Walsota up the Cumberland; from Jackson 115 miles to Elkhorn. Railroad presidents, bankers and capitalists are seen in the mountains almost daily. Options it is said have already been taken upon virtually every bit of coal and timber land. Some of these are already being opened; others are to follow. Such counties as Floyd, Pike and Knott are growing rapidly. Villages like Paintsville, Pikeville and Prestonsburg are to become little cities and one day they may be thriving metropolises. Such is the progress that the mountains are making materially.

For much that has been accomplished in making the mountain people what they are, great credit is due the mountain preacher. His has been "the voice of one crying in the wilderness." Always he had believed in them and none will be happier than he when he sees the golden dawn of that greater day, when he has so long prophesied is soon to come.

Louisa people endorse our claim.

Mrs. Fred Picklesimer, of Louisa, says: "One of my neighbors first brought Doan's Kidney Pills to my notice, but I did not take them until I was in a miserable condition and almost beyond being cured. The pains disappeared from my back, that dull, bearing-down ache through my hips was removed and the kidney secretions became natural. I cannot praise Doan's Kidney Pills too highly."

Along the Milky Way.

Along the milky way
An airship man went flopping.
He found, to his dismay,
His craft was nearly stopping.
He couldn't place the fault
Until a kind star-dweller
Advised that he should halt
And look at his propeller.

And then the man was heard
Some naughty things to mutter.
His plight was quite absurd;
The screw was clogged with butter.

Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress. Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off. The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be quickly unscrewed for reworking. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

NOTES OF THE FARM.

COLUMN OF INTERESTING NEWS
THAT WILL BENEFIT
FARMERS.

There seems to be no good reason why dairy work should be so far behind in the Southern States. We have the climate, the length of season, the field crops and pastureage. These features are not ideal in every vicinity, but in some they would certainly be hard to surpass. Evidently our greatest lack is the will to do.

A recent number of The Progressive Farmer shows that in Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania the average number of milk cows per farm worker is more than six times what it is in the States of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. It is also shown that the average amount received from sales of livestock per farm worker in Iowa, Indiana and Illinois is $212, while in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi it is only $13.

These facts were taken from the census of ten years ago, and the editor says, "We rejoice to say that conditions have improved greatly since 1900," but he thinks the essential principles remain the same now as then and that one of the South's main agricultural needs still is "more dairying and stock raising." He says further that "we can beat the Westerner farming when we once make up our minds to do it, and we believe we are fast coming to that frame of mind."

Dairy Definitions.

Every intelligent dairyman is supposed to be familiar with the literature of his profession, and there are certain terms which may need definition. A few of these we give as follows:

Bacteria—These are vegetable germs that change the character of milk, turning it from sweet to sour and otherwise modifying its keeping qualities.

Pasteurization—This refers to the destruction of germ life in milk by heat, so that it will keep much longer and not convey the germs of disease.

Babcock Test—This is one of the various ways of determining the percent of fat in milk, and in so much superior to all others that it is practically the only one now used.

Albuminoids—These are substance rich in albumin like the white of an egg. Besides albumin proper we have included in the albuminoids also casein, which is of prime importance in the making of cheese.

Certified Milk—Milk produced under perfect sanitary conditions which are certified to by a medical milk commission. Ordinary milk sours in from one to three days, but certified milk often keeps from ten to fourteen days.

Dairy Cleanings.

The indications now are that there will be no pressing shortage of cattle soon if at all, though a good demand. Statistics show the country is holding its own.

The amount of fat in the first milk drawn from a cow's udder shows a much greater per cent than what is found in the "strippings" or last milk drawn.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt recently bought several $1,300 Jersey cows for his farm at Newport. T. S. Cooper, of Pennsylvania, recently sold a cow, Golden Sulana at public auction, for $3,700. One of this cow's sons sold for $11,199. And yet $12,000 was paid for another bull on Mr. Cooper's farm at Coopersburg.

You may keep the stable clean and your cow clean and yourself clean and even scald your vessels clean, but, if you put them out to sun where dust from the road blows into them, your milk will the next day, be full of bacteria.

Paragraphs on Churning.

Churning is the process of gathering the globules of fat in the cream into solid masses. It may be done both by friction and concussion, but the latter is preferred.

The ease of churning depends upon the ripeness of the cream, its temperature, the character of the cow, her feed, and other factors which are learned by study and experience.

The butter will be harder if the cream is kept at a low temperature some hours before churning. Rapid churning and great friction produce heat and soften the butter.

If all conditions are favorable, the butter should "come" in from fifteen to forty minutes. I have rarely failed to have it come in fifteen minutes with an old dash churn early in the morning.

Good results generally come from churning cream at a temperature of 55 to 64 degrees. Some cows and gluten feeds require it lower. The butter may come soft even at 48 degrees. Jersey cream may require the higher temperature and cottonseed meal usually has this effect.

Before putting in the cream, scald the churn with boiling water to swell the wood and make it easier to clean. Then chill with cold water to prevent heating the cream. If it becomes dry, wet it again before putting in the cream.

Forced to Leave Home.

Every ear a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. Kings New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. B. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. Its surely the King of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. Its positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Croup—all Throat and Lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at A. M. Hughes'.

The first apple jack distillery that has operated in this section for a long time has begun to do business. It will be located near Hart's creek in Lincoln county where Bill Abbott, an old hand at the business has been getting everything in readiness. He expects to run the still in straight forward manner, and has an abundance of fruit on land. There has been an immense crop of apples about that region.

Rev. J. T. Arnold, of Clarksburg, was expelled from the West Va. Conference of the M. E. church at the Annual conference held at Clarksburg last week for securing a divorce for others causes than adultery, which is the only cause for divorce that church will recognize.

The census reports just in show Huntington to have a population of 31,240 and is easily the second city in the State in population. Wheeling the largest city in the State, has a population of 41,641. the uniform examination as the first second and third hold-ups; and believe that they are in to many instances flunked merely because it's money in the administration pocket to do so. It costs an applicant $2 for each examination if he takes half of them. In the first examination this year there were just five persons out of six or seven thousand applicants who averaged the required per cent. for a first grade certificate. Perhaps five thousand tried the second time and a like number the third. And they will be on hand in full force next year. Rather rough on the teachers and would-be teachers, whether they deserve it or not, but a source of considerable income. The public schools are supposed to have greatly improved under the present system in the past several years, therefore why so few ones and such a deluge of flunks? Braxton Democrat.

Frank Hasselman and William Powell, the two railroaders bound to the grand jury for the murder of E. M. Kelley have been released on bond. The bond was executed in the penalty of $5,000 each as soon as Judge Wilkinson granted the order for bail.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

COLUMN DEDICATED TO TIRED MOTHERS AS THEY JOIN THE HOME CIRCLE.

Laugh at the follies of youth, scorn the counsel of the wise, and heed not the advice of your elders; but as surely as the sun sinks beneath the sea, just so surely there comes a day of reckoning.

A Hint to Mothers.

If you wish to cultivate a gossiping, meddling, censorious spirit in your children, be sure, when they come home from church, a visit or any place to which you do not accompany them to ply them with questions concerning what everybody wore, how everybody looked, and what everybody said and did; and if you find anything in all this to censure always do it in their hearing. You may rest assured if you pursue a course of this kind, they will not return to you unladen with intelligence; and, rather than it should be uninteresting they will by degrees learn to embellish in such a manner as shall not fail to call forth remarks and expressions of wonder from you. You will by this course render a spirit of curiosity—which is early visible in children and which if rightly directed may be made the instrument of enriching and enlarging their minds—a vehicle of mischief which shall serve only to narrow them.

The Popular Idea of Marriage.

It is certain that the society man of today marries a woman who makes his home a restful place from which he is seldom tempted to wander. Why should he? The sunniest brightest room in the house is his sanctum; here are his favorite books, pictures he likes, the latest magazines with leaves cut and no end of pipes. When the train whistle into the depot, in which is this fortunate man, a fire is started on the low hearth to make the room cheerful, although the warmth is not needed. To this room he brings his friends and here husband and wife sit when alone. Everything that will help the wife to make a home a means of grace she reads, on her table are always to be found books and magazines that talk of the higher life of the home. We mean good cooking when we say higher life, a hitherto much neglected part of religion. This man, formerly out every evening, rarely goes to the theater or opera, or ball, because his home has greater attraction and he is really now so sensible, well-informed, and amounting to something that his friends are rejoiced that the seemingly incongruous marriage came about.

Early Training.

It is woman's duty to look well to the ways of her household. To do this she must have a sound mind in a sound body. She must be trained and educated from infancy with this aim constantly before her. Her mother should go to her play house and teach her how to arrange it nicely. Get her a trunk and see that she keeps her things well arranged in it. Give her a place for her playthings. Then see that others do not molest them. When she is older, give her a room to keep tidy. Also have her to help do any and every kind of housework. Tell her of your aim. Explain that it is all for her own good in the future. When she is twelve, go visiting and let her see how much there is to do, and how well she can manage it.

Some girls are discouraged after marriage to find so much more to do than they anticipated. Worse still, to find themselves so ignorant how to do. Explain that there is real pleasure in doing most any kind of work after we learn how. That after she is married, she will neither have time to learn nor have a teacher. What she must have is pride of character, self-control, self-reliance, and self-denial. That she must be cleanly, orderly, energetic and persevering. Reaching her aim depends on her own efforts. That she must make herself do the right thing at the right time in the right way.

Urge her to take care of her health, to be in bed at 9. To be temperate in all things. To cultivate and practice good morals and gentle manners for the sake of her influence on others. To practice eating, walking, talking, etc., at home as though she were abroad. Because practice makes perfect, and because repetition forms habits and habits are second nature.

In short, see that she marshals all her forces to reach her aim. When it can be truly said of her that she is useful as well as ornamental, and that she has a good practical, all-round education, her mother has looked well to the ways of one of her household. Our opinion is that all this cannot be accomplished in less than twenty years. That a girl is not capable of looking well to the ways of her household younger than this.

At twenty this girl is now capable of making her own choice. If her husband takes a wrong view or wrong aim she can reason him into right by gentle, patient perseverance. She will reign queen of her home and her home will be a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

WILT THOU THAT WE COMMAND FIRE?

Luke 9:51-56—October 23

"And it came to pass, when the days were well-nigh come, that he should be received up, he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem and sent messengers before his face."

THIS week's study relates an incident which occurred on the occasion of our Lord's journey from Galilee to Jerusalem just before his crucifixion. He knew that his hour was come; that his sacrificial life of three and a half years should be accomplished. The Great Teacher was full of courage. "But of the people there were none with him" in the sense of sympathetic appreciation of the conditions. True, he had informed the twelve Apostles respecting the consummation of his work and its nearness, but they had been slow to believe all the things written in the Law and the prophecies concerning him. Their minds naturally grasped the glorious things spoken of the Messiah. They were so busy thinking of his glorious Kingdom, and of their glorious association with him in that Kingdom, that they failed to note the other prophecies which, with equal distinctness, foretold his sufferings and ignominy. Similarly, they overlooked the Master's own words concerning his death. They thought of him as speaking in some figurative, hyperbolic manner. And Peter even attempted to rebuke him, saying, "Be this far from thee, Lord; it shall not happen unto thee."

Refused by the Samaritans

Another account intimates that James and John visited the Samaritan city for the purchase of bread and supplies for the party. The Samaritans recognized them and inquired, would the Great Teacher recognize the Samaritans and heal their sickness or would he treat them as Jews in general treated them—unkindly? They believed the latter. The Apostles frankly told them that the Great Teacher was sent only to the Jewish nation and would not stop to heal their sick ones, because he was "not sent save to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

Naturally enough the Samaritans resented this and were angry. They said, Very well. Buy bread from the people whom you instruct and whose sick you heal.

St. John and St. James were greatly incensed at this. Was not Jesus the greatest Teacher? Was he not the Messiah? Had he not, as such, the right to determine the will of God respecting who should and who should not receive his benefactions? With this answer they came to Jesus and, relating the circumstances, asked, "Wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven to destroy these men and their city?"

What Spirit Are Ye Of?

We listen with keen interest for the Master's response. As we once viewed the matter of the Divine program it would have seemed right for the Great Teacher to say to the Apostles, Never mind, my dear Disciples; wait just a little while and all those Samaritans will die and my Heavenly Father will deliver them over to the devils for an eternity of torture. In comparison with eternal torture that which you purpose in the way of burning up their city and incidentally burning them for a few minutes would be as nothing. I appreciate, my dear disciples, your spirit, that it is God-like; that you desire to do all the roasting and burning within your power, and I commend you for it. Continue to thus copy your God and to cause suffering to as many as possible of your fellow-creatures who do not think exactly as you do.

Was this the answer of the Great Teacher? Thank God, No! His teaching was the very reverse—sympathetic, loving, kind. And he had the Father's Spirit and understood it and followed it perfectly. In answer to their query, we read, "Jesus turned and rebuked them" and said, "Ye know not what spirit ye are of! The Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them!"

"A Savior and a Great One"

The language spoken in Palestine in Jesus' day was the Syriac. One of the Great Teacher's titles is The Savior. And this, in the Syriac language, signifies, "The Life-Giver." The whole world was damned enough before

LOUISA, KEN UCKY

Jesus came. He came not to damn (condemn) them more, but that they through him might have life (John x. 10; iii. 17).

Life! Did they not have life? No. All human life was forfeited through father Adam's disobedience. All mankind are dying as a result. A Life-Giver, a Savior from death (and not from eternal torment), was what was needed.

The first work of the Savior is the redemptive work of Calvary. His second work is the selection of his Church to be his joint-heirs in the Kingdom. His third work will be the saving of Adam and all his race from sin and death—from all the mental, moral and physical degradation which came through father Adam's disobedience.

and through his children being born in sin and shapen in iniquity and in sin conceived by the mothers.

The saving of the Church is a great work! How faithful we should be if we have heard, if our eyes have seen, if our hearts have tasted of the grace of God in this wonderful privilege of becoming members of the Bride of Christ. However, we cannot suppose that the saving of merely a handful of select ones is the purpose of God in the creation of the world and in the redeeming of the world. On the contrary, this elect "Little Flock" is spoken of as a "first-fruits unto God of his creatures" (James i. 18; Revelation xiv. 4). This implies an after-fruitage much more numerous. While God does not propose to save anyone out of death and to life eternal contrary to the individual will, he does propose that every creature lost in Adam and redeemed by Jesus shall be brought to a clear knowledge of the Truth, that they may be saved. He does propose that only the willingly obdurate shall be lost; and their loss will be the loss of life—as the Apostle declares, "everlasting destruction."

PEACH ORCHARD.

Ueach Orchard has again been honored by having within her limits, though but for a short time, one of Kentucky's most gifted sons, Gov. A. E. Willson. Gov. Willson, accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. Morris, arrived in our little town on Monday morning's train. He was en route to Inez, the picturesque little metropolis of Martin-co., where his coming was made the occasion of a rally—a Langley rally—which seemingly was participated in by most all the Martin citizens, as well as many adjoining counties.

Gov. Willson's party was increased by a goodly number of our citizens, among whom was Mr. Chatfield, the popular manager of the Peach Orchard Coal Co. The party was met a short distance out of Inez by a delegation of her citizens who, amid the loud huzzas and acclamations of the people, and the waving of countless banners offered them a most cordial welcome to a town noted for its hospitality.

On the night of the 10th, inst., Peach Orchard and vicinity was given an intellectual and spiritual feast Jonathan C. Kelly, post-graduate of Princeton, ex-principal of the Willson Memorial Academy and for years a missionary to China, delivered at this place a sermon on the text—"The Son of man came to seek and to save that which is lost." To say that the sermon was an eloquent one would be putting it feebly. From start to peroration it was a continual flight of sacred eloquence. The sermon throughout was a feast of biblical truths and matchless English, and when to make a fitting finish to his almost inspired efforts the preacher delivered the peroration in which was a beautiful word painting of the Christian's reward, we thought him a harbinger of the Millennium dawn. To fully appreciate such a sermon one is compelled to be present and to drink the eternal truths as they flow from out of the soul of God's anointed apostle.

Dr. Theodore Preston is building a new dwelling house. The masons are now erecting the chimney and it will be ready for occupying in a short time.

No one seems to desire a county claim in this district. The trustee has been unsuccessful in employing any one to coal for the public school.

Why? The publication of the rules governing the payment of county claims by the treasurer, would be interesting to both taxpayer and claim holder. These rules compared with the actual manner of payment of claims, would no doubt answer the question.

After divine service at the Church of God on last Sunday evening the congregation assembled at the water, where sisters Clara and Eva Chandler, mother and daughter, were buried with Christ by baptism. The administration of the ordinance on this occasion was very impressive. Truth.
